Confio Software Announces New Performance Partner Program

Consultants and Integrators Gain Easy Access to Best-of-Breed Oracle Tools

February 28, 2006 - Boulder, CO. - Confio Software, a leading innovator of performance tools for Oracle databases and Java applications, today announced a program for consultants and integrators to gain free licensed access to Confio tools for use in customer engagements. The Confio Performance Partner Program is designed for implementers of Oracle databases and Oracle based business applications needing expert performance analysis tools to use in their customer deployments. Under the Program, the Partner gains free licensed access to Confio Ignite for Oracle software for use in implementation and training engagements.

Simple to join, with no fees or financial obligations, Confio Performance Partners Program provides an Oracle database performance alliance that improves customer service delivery. "Confio Software's products are used by many consultants to optimize application performance during the implementation stages", said Don Bergal, Chief Operating Officer for Confio. "This program is designed to make it easier for our consulting partners to gain access to the highest value Wait-Time based performance tools", added Mr. Bergal. Upon joining the program, Partners are given temporary licenses to Confio products on an as-needed basis. They use the Confio tools to ensure a successful customer engagement and expose them to new IT customers along the way.

Confio Ignite for Oracle is used to:

- Conclusively identify the root causes of Oracle database performance problems, down to specific SQL statements and Oracle Wait-Events
- Isolate and remedy performance problems in new applications during the implementation phase, before they have impact on the production systems.
- Identify the ownership for problems, whether in application code, database configuration, or system operation.
